

Editorial guidelines

A volume will gather a selection of the presentations from the Congress. A scientific committee will choose –within the limits agreed with Cambridge Scholars Publishing (235,000 words)– the texts that best meet the following criteria: closeness to the topic of the Conference, mythocritic approach, scientific methodology, critical and bibliographical apparatus, originality, quality of content and clarity. The publishing house does not distribute free copies. Nevertheless, authors may acquire them directly with a 40% discount.

Texts can be written in Spanish, English or French. The set length for contributions will be under 4,000 words.

The deadline submission is 16 December, 2016.

All articles will be sent to Antonella Lipscomb: conference@mythcriticism.com.

Authors are requested to use the Word template available for download through the site (see page 6 or download from our website).

Images should be sent as TIFF files and have a resolution of at least 300 dpi. Also, they should be saved in the CMYK mode. Requesting permissions for the inclusion of materials whose copyright is not owned by the author is the author's responsibility. Images that do not comply with these requirements might not be published.

The referencing system should comply with the author-date system of the Chicago Manual of Style:

http://www.chicagomanualofstyle.org/tools\_citationguide.html.

Author-Date: Sample Citations

The following examples illustrate citations using the author-date system. Each example of a reference list entry is accompanied by an example of a corresponding parenthetical citation in the text. For more details and many more examples, see chapter 15 of The Chicago Manual of Style.

Journal article

Article in a print journal

In the text, list the specific page numbers consulted, if any. In the reference list entry, list the page range for the whole article.

Article in an online journal

Include a DOI (Digital Object Identifier) if the journal lists one. A DOI is a permanent ID that, when appended to <http://dx.doi.org/> in the address bar of an Internet browser, will lead to the source. If no DOI is available, list a URL. Include an access date.

Kossinets, Gueorgi, and Duncan J. Watts. 2009. "Origins of Homophily in an Evolving Social Network." American Journal of Sociology 115:405–50. Accessed February 28, 2010. doi:10.1086/599247.

(Kossinets and Watts 2009, 411)

Article in a newspaper or popular magazine

Newspaper and magazine articles may be cited in running text (“As Sheryl Stolberg and Robert Pear noted in a New York Times article on February 27, 2010, . . .”), and they are commonly omitted from a reference list. The following examples show the more formal versions of the citations. If you consulted the article online, include a URL and the access date.

Mendelsohn, Daniel. 2010. “But Enough about Me.” New Yorker, January 25.

Stolberg, Sheryl Gay, and Robert Pear. 2010. “Wary Centrists Posing Challenge in Health Care Vote.” New York Times, February 27. Accessed February 28, 2010. <http://www.nytimes.com/2010/02/28/us/politics/28health.html>.

(Adelman 2009)

Website

A citation to website content can often be limited to a mention in the text (“As of July 19, 2008, the McDonald’s Corporation listed on its website . . .”). If a more formal citation is desired, it may be styled as in the examples below. Because such content is subject to change, include an access date or, if available, a date that the site was last modified. In the absence of a date of publication, use the access date or last-modified date as the basis of the citation.

Google. 2009. “Google Privacy Policy.” Last modified March 11.
<http://www.google.com/intl/en/privacypolicy.html>.

McDonald’s Corporation. 2008. “McDonald’s Happy Meal Toy Safety Facts.” Accessed July 19. <http://www.mcdonalds.com/corp/about/factsheets.html>. (Google 2009)
(McDonald’s 2008)

Blog entry or comment

Blog entries or comments may be cited in running text (“In a comment posted to The Becker-Posner Blog on February 23, 2010, . . .”), and they are commonly omitted from a reference list. If a reference list entry is needed, cite the blog post there but mention comments in the text only. (If an access date is required, add it before the URL; see examples elsewhere in this guide.)

Posner, Richard. 2010. “Double Exports in Five Years?” The Becker-Posner Blog, February 21. <http://uchicagolaw.typepad.com/beckerposner/2010/02/double-exports-in-five-years-posner.html>.
(Posner 2010)

E-mail or text message

E-mail and text messages may be cited in running text (“In a text message to the author on March 1, 2010, John Doe revealed . . .”), and they are rarely listed in a reference list. In parenthetical citations, the term personal communication (or pers. comm.) can be used.

(John Doe, e-mail message to author, February 28, 2010) or
(John Doe, pers. comm.)

Item in a commercial database

For items retrieved from a commercial database, add the name of the database and an accession number following the facts of publication. In this example, the dissertation cited above is shown as it would be cited if it were retrieved from ProQuest's database for dissertations and theses.

Choi, Mihwa. 2008. "Contesting Imaginaires in Death Rituals during the Northern Song Dynasty." PhD diss., University of Chicago. ProQuest (AAT 3300426).

How to use the template

The template is set to A5 and includes all relevant styles to format the document. Once it has been downloaded, you can type directly on it. If you have the text written somewhere else, you can copy and paste it on the template, taking into account the formatting differences of each part (headings, main text, quotations, etc.). Use the 'Paste Special' option and then click on 'Unformatted text'.

You can also copy and paste your text and then apply the corresponding style to each paragraph or part of the text. In order to display the gallery of styles, click on the arrow that you will find in the Home tab/Styles group:

The Style pane is then displayed:

The first page has no heading or footer. It includes the following information and formats:

- Chapter (in Roman numerals), title and author: CPS_Heading.
- Abstract and keywords (in the language of submission):
CSP_Abstract_Heading and CSP_Abstract_Text.
- Title, abstract and keywords translated into a second language (Spanish or French if the paper is written in English).
- Leave three blank lines.

The rest of the document is formatted as follows:

- Even page header: leave it as it is (Chapter One).
- Odd page header: title of your submission.
- First level heading: CSP_Header 1.
- Second level heading: CSP_Header 2.
- Main text: CSP_Text.
- Indented quotations for texts over 2 lines: CSP_Quotations. A blank 10 point-line should be left before and after each quotation.
- Footnotes: CSP_Footnotes.

The Works Cited page uses the following styles:

- Heading: CSP_Heading 1.
- List of cited works: CSP_Works Cited.
